Written and recorded by Gina Langsfield

during the closure, for the

Spiritualist Association of Great Britain

Good afternoon everyone, this is Gina Langsfield, welcoming you once again on behalf of the SAGB. And for those joining us on Zoom, a special welcome to our medium for today, George Lawson. And to our chairperson, Penny O'Meara.

Please join me in prayer.

Dear God, loving Spirit

We pray today that all are fortunate to be blessed with the knowledge of eternal universal truth, will stand strongly and with courage, to be true ambassadors for Spirit.

So the golden wisdom of spiritual knowledge can spread ever further amongst the inhabitants of earth who, especially in these troubled times, need this knowledge and comfort so much.

Please give us courage that even in the occasional face of ignorance or ridicule we will never fail to defend the truth of Spirit.

Amen

Honour Those Who Walk Beside Us

The truth of Spirit, that joy of knowledge that life is eternal and that those we love walk beside us, until that day when we join them fully and walk beside them again to the land of dreams, as that beautiful song our Facebook listeners heard today so rightly depicts the Spirit World.

Why would anyone ridicule or condemn those that try to teach them about Spirit. Does anyone normally condemn someone who gives them a beautiful gift? And surely this is the greatest gift of all to be given, the joy of knowing that life and love are eternal.

Yet, there will always be those who find more joy in giving spiritualists a hard time than in the knowledge that their loved ones still walk beside them.

We understand there are those who simply can't accept this news because it just sounds too good to be true.

Then there are those so steeped in orthodoxy that they sadly believe that they are doing something wrong by as they falsely believe it, calling up the so called dead. Add to these the most hard headed scientifically minded group who refuse to believe in anything they themselves can't see or hear.

The fanatics, who just refuse to have anything to do with Spirit and those who are just literally terrified of the unknown. And it is obvious why we Spiritualists don't have an easy job on our hands. Of course frustrating as this is, we can't force what we know on others, all have free will and the right to decide for themselves what they choose to believe.

But we do have nonetheless a responsibility to Spirit, to have the courage of our convictions.

It is so sad when we hear experienced Spiritualists saying such things as, I didn't tell anyone about my belief in case they think I'm strange. Or, my friends don't know I'm a Spiritualist, they probably wouldn't understand. Really, does it matter?

If one is a true friend they aren't going to reject you because of your spiritual way of life and if they are not a true friend better you should know.

As for general groups there may of course be no reason why the subject should have come up but if an opportunity presents itself it'll be Spirit's way of giving us a chance of spreading this knowledge and to be an ambassador for them.

At the best we might have improved someone's life forever, at the worst they may sneer at us or verbally attack us, so, what if they do, should we care?

Which matters most, to serve Spirit or to win the approval of everyone on earth by giving?? in. With spiritual knowledge comes responsibility, by denying others the chance to learn truth, we deny the importance to those loved ones who walk beside us.

Spirit will never let us down, let us afford them that same loving service.

On behalf of our manager Karl and the Trustees. Our staff, mediums, healers and as always myself, thank you for joining us. And now for our Zoom listeners I hand you back over to Penny O'Meara
